DAILY TRIBUNE.

Wednesday Morning.......April 7, 1858

THE TOWN ELECTIONS.

Complete Republican Triumph!

Probable Election of Every Republican Candidate in the City.

It is understood that the Democracy of Chicago are disgusted with politics, and have determined to vote no more! At the present writing, (12 P. M.) the indications are that the Republican candidates are elected in the three Towns—South, West, and North Chicago—without a single exception. It is certain that the Republican Supervisors have been elected in every Ward in the city. Possibly a few Democrats are elected on the Town ticket in South Chicago. The vote was very large, for an April election, and the canvassers could not possibly finish counting before three o'clock this morning. The probability is, not an Irishman has been elected in the city. On the North Side the sweep is complete. The [illegible] Democracy are routed from A to Z. We subjoin the returns as far as received for Ward Supervisors:

[illegible]

The whole vote of the South Town is 3,179. The Republican majority is certainly 500!

Connecticut Election.

Connecticut is, politically, the most fishy of all the New England States. Her doubtful adherence to Freedom has been often lamented, but her reformation has, until now, appeared far off. The vote on Monday last fixes her position, and hereafter, so long as the memory of Lecompton lasts, we hope to count on her as worthy of the neighborhood of staunch old Massachusetts.

Grand Republican Triumph.

At the city election held in Davenport, Iowa on Saturday last, the whole Republican ticket for municipal officers was elected—the Mayor, Ebenezer Cook, Esq., by 707 majority. The Board of Aldermen is tied—three Republicans and three Democrats being elected.

Republican Triumph.

St. Louis elects a full Free State ticket by an average majority of 1,200, against the most [illegible] and determined opposition. This is [illegible] endorsement of that noble Representative of St. Louis County, Hon. F. P. Blair, Jr., of whom his friends may well be proud. In Cincinnati we have a loud Anti-Lecompton gun—after the vote in Congress on the Great Iniquity, the most significant condemnation of the policy of the usurpers that has yet been heard. The triumph is complete—the majority overwhelming. In Dubuque, the People's ticket, which was but a Republican protest against the continuance of the Celtic domination in that city, has succeeded—an unlooked for event. It is premonitory of more decisive victory in the future. In Jefferson City, that gallant leader of the Free State forces, J. B. Gardenhire, has been elected Mayor, together with a full ticket of the same stamp. The town elections in Michigan are all one way. There seems to be none other than a Republican party in the gallant Peninsular State.

General Harney Exasperated.

The telegraph reports that in consequence of the appointment of Gen. Persifer F. Smith to the command of the Army of Utah, Gen. Harney is greatly exasperated! What will that wicked man of war do—accept Sumner's invitation to pistols and coffee for two, or—whip another woman to death?

CITY ITEMS.

Y. M. C. A. A.—The annual election of officers of the Young Men's Church Aid Association [illegible] Church was postponed from Monday evening [illegible] week, to Monday evening next, the 12th [illegible], when it is hoped every interested member of the Association will be present.

Davidson has gone to Galesburgh to bring them down here. Mr. [illegible] and the others recently [illegible] in the United States District Court.

[illegible]—The Boston Transcript says that "in a single building in Boston, last evening, there was a prayer meeting on one floor, a boxing exhibition in the room above, and a calico ball in the upper hall. A passage from one room of the edifice to another would have given a good illustration of Pope's line: 'From grave to gay, from lively to severe.'"

[illegible] the Old Stand.—The customers of [illegible] & Co. will please not forget that these gentlemen have removed to No. 78 Dearborn street, nearly opposite the old location. They have just [illegible] number of the "Bon Ton," and also [illegible] of the Westminster Review, for January; Leslie's Magazine, for April; Godey, for April; and this afternoon they will have Leslie's Paper, and the Mercury and Waverly for this week.

[illegible] Parnell, [illegible] Charles, in Kane County, [illegible] of that place last evening, [illegible]. He came to that place from [illegible] his friends in some of the Eastern [illegible] of whom he for some reason [illegible] avoided disclosing. St. James' Church (Union Park).—The annual [illegible] of the congregation was numerously attended, and a large number of pews were let, at an [illegible] on the last year's amount. Madame Isidora Clark's Concert this Evening.—Those who have been on the qui vive for the past week to hear the celebrated cantatrice Madame Isidora Clark, will have their wishes gratified this evening. Her first concert in our city takes place at Metropolitan Hall this evening, and she will be assisted by some of the best artists and amateurs in Chicago and from abroad.

We have already published a number of highly flattering notices, from the pens of the ablest and most reliable critics of the Eastern cities, of Madame Clark's singing, and we trust that the high endorsement she has everywhere received will be sufficient assurance to our readers that she is among the first artistes of the Old and the New World.

Sig. Centemeri is everywhere regarded as one of the best barritones living, and is certainly unsurpassed by any now on this side of the Atlantic. Some time since, Sig. Centemeri sang at one of Mrs. Bostwick's concerts in this city, and so much pleased was the audience, that everything he sang was encored over and over again.

Mr. J. P. Taunt, tenor, has never appeared before a Chicago audience, although a resident here, but with the musical public of Buffalo, his former home, he was very popular, and is there regarded as one of the best amateurs in the country.

Messrs. E. F. Post and F. Smith, flutists, are also amateurs, resident in this city, and are well known to most of our citizens. Mr. Smith we have never heard in the concert room. Mr. Post, the public have heard at the Afternoon Concerts of the lamented Henry Ahner, and his performances gave universal satisfaction, and his reputation as an amateur of more than ordinary merit is fully established.

Mr. L. Hehl is well known to our concert-goers as a pianist of merit, and of him we need not speak.

The introduction of a full orchestra into the concert room, to play all the accompaniments to the vocal pieces, is a new feature in this city, and now that we have so excellent an orchestra as that under the direction of Mr. Unger, we hope the example set by Madame Clark will be universally followed, as orchestral accompaniments add so much to the effect of vocal music. The following is the

Resolved, That we adjourn to meet again at the call of the President.

C. D. Bragdon, Secretary.

Many of our cotemporaries are mentioning in the highest terms what may be justly termed one of the institutions of our city—Farwell's Steam Bag factory, 42, 44 and 46 Wabash Avenue. We have lately visited this establishment, and were astonished at its magnitude and completeness, the size of the floor occupied being 60 by 130 feet, divided into several rooms, for sewing machines, printing, &c. Mr. F. has seventeen sewing machines and two presses, worked by an engine of twelve horse power, which also serves to heat the whole building.—With these he is enabled to make, brand and ship, 15,000 sacks per day. We have not space to do full justice to this establishment, but must not omit to mention the great beauty and variety of his designs for branding. The whole establishment is unquestionably without a rival in the West, and certainly not surpassed by any in the East.

Use Plenty of Gravy.—Dr. Dixon, in a late number of the Scalpel, in an article on "Diet," assumes the position that "the use of oil would decrease the victims of consumption nine tenths, and that this is the whole secret of the use of cod liver oil," quotes the following summary of observations on this subject, made by Dr. Hooker:

1. Of all the persons between the ages of fifteen and twenty-two years, more than one-fifth eat no fat meat.

2. Of persons at the age of 45, all, excepting less than one in fifty, habitually use fat meat.

3. Of persons who, between the ages of 15 and 22, avoid fat meat, a few acquire an appetite for it, and live to a good old age, while the greater portion die with phthisis before 25.

4. Of persons dying with phthisis, between the ages of 15 and 45, nine-tenths, at least, have never used fat meat.

Most individuals who avoid fat meat, also use little butter or oily gravies; though many compensate for this want, in part at least, by a free use of these articles, and also milk, eggs, and various saccharine substances. But they constitute an imperfect substitute for fat meat, without which sooner or later the body is almost sure to show the effects of deficient calorification.

Attention, Chicago Light Guard!—The members of this corps are hereby notified to appear at the Armory on Saturday next, April 10, 1858, at 2 o'clock P. M., armed and equipped for full dress parade. It is desired that every active member of the company will be present.

By order of Capt. Booth. H. M. Flint, April 7th, 1858. Secretary.

Quick Time.—We received last evening, by American Express Company, Cincinnati papers of yesterday morning.

An Unwise Act.—The Council last night abolished the office of Assistant Harbor Master. To those in the vessel interest, who experienced vexation and delay last year, with two officers, this action may seem strange. It is impossible for one man to perform the duties. The Council might rather have appointed two assistants—one for each branch—than to endeavor to get along with one.—Journal.

It was understood by the Aldermen, when the amendment of which the Journal complains was passed, that the Harbor Master should employ such assistance as he needed in the proper discharge of his duties. A portion of the time the Harbor Master has no use for assistants, while during the busy season he needs two, or even more. The object in making the change was to enable the Harbor Master to accommodate himself in the matter of employing assistants, to the necessities of his business.

GEO. R. CHITTENDEN, Agent, 160 Lake street, Chicago, Ill.

[Send for a circular.]

To Geo. Chittenden, Agent; Sir—We have used the Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine, and applied it to every description of family sewing, and find it does all, and even more, than you claim for it. It sews every kind of material, working equally well upon silk, woolen and cotton goods; seaming, quilting, gathering, hemming, &c., with a beauty and strength unequalled by any other machine that we have seen.

We have no hesitation in recommending it to our friends as an economical and very desirable labor-saving machine.

Receipts of principal articles by rail and Canal yesterday, April 5th, were:

Flour, bbls	1,304	Hides, lbs	[illegible]
Wheat, bu	[illegible]	Provisions, lbs	[illegible]
Corn, bu	[illegible]	Lard, lbs	[illegible]

By Lake, 1,420 bbls Flour were shipped, and 10,621 bu Wheat.

FREIGHTS.—Owners and agents of lake-bound vessels were buying cargoes of corn to-day with which to load, in preference to submitting to a reduction of freights. There seems to be little of the large amount of Produce here owned by shippers, and country holders must sell before it will likely go forward; there is therefore no inquiry for vessels. None are better able than the farmers to hold over for better prices, but with prospects of a great yield from the growing crops, they will be likely to sell soon.

FLOUR.—Nothing doing, the market remaining comparatively stagnant.

WHEAT—Some 4,000 bu Spring sold early at [illegible] in store; afterwards the market was depressed, and one dealer bought 3,000 bu (April receipts) at 61c in store; a few cars of Marc[illegible] receipts at 60c and 4,000 bu winter receipts at 61½ in store; a canal boat load sold at 61½ afloat, and another is reported at 62½ on board, and a vessel cargo from 10th to 15th inst. at the same, and 10,000 bu on the 15th at 62c on board; a boat load, before steamer's news, at 63c [illegible], and another (club) at 64c on the dock; a car of extra [illegible] at [illegible] in store.

CORN—Some 40,000 to 50,000 bu changed hands to-day, all, indeed, that was offered. A holder sold 20,000 bu yesterday at 40c afloat, and 10,000 bu this morning at the same; another boat load sold at the same and three boats at 41c on board. It was mostly purchased on vessel account, and of choice quality. That received by rail is not so good and brings a less figure, [illegible] in store.

MARINE INTELLIGENCE.

Straits of Mackinac.—A dispatch from Milwaukee announced the arrival at that port, yesterday afternoon, of the schooner "Fred Hill," from Port Huron, on the St. Clair River. A letter was received here yesterday morning from Mackinac, with the information that the Straits have been opened since the 19th of March.

The propeller "Ogontz" was knocked off yesterday to Capt. A. E. Goodrich at $3,000.

The steamer "Lady Elgin," owing to the Nor'wester prevailing, did not go out yesterday evening. She leaves her dock this evening, for the head of Lake Superior.

Yesterday's wind was favorable for clearing the Buffalo harbor of ice. It is probable the downward bound fleet will find no difficulty in getting through. On Saturday, the schooners Snell, Kate Richmond, Ethan Allen, A. R. Hart and Metropolis cleared at Buffalo for Chicago, and the Snell for Milwaukee.

Passed Down.—It will be seen by the dispatch from Detroit, received last night, that the downward bound fleet from here passed that city yesterday, reporting all clear.

New York, April 6.—Affairs throughout France continue greatly depressed. The railway receipts for the week were the worst that had ever been known. The goods trains had absolutely nothing to carry.

The Municipal Commission of Paris has resolved on commencing the public works on a large scale, so as to give employment to the operatives.

The Paris correspondent of the London Herald gives a rumor that the Empress is enceinte, according to a Swiss paper.

The affair of the refugees is nearly terminated. It is proposed to the Federal Council to give a fixed residence in the interior, and to expel forty-one persons. Among the Frenchmen twelve had already left for England.

A dispatch from St. Petersburg says Russia is watching with great interest the relations of England and France.

The Russian Navy is to be manned fully, and ship building increased.

Russia has no intention of accepting English and French Consuls in the Black Sea. All suspicious vessels in the Circassian coast will be seized.

TURKEY.

The Alexandria correspondent of the London Times says that Mr. Deleon, the U. S. Consul at that place, had returned from the mission he undertook to Syria in connection with the outrage upon a family residing near Jaffa.

The Turkish authorities had yielded to the indignant remonstrances of Mr. Deleon, and arrested four of the parties to the outrage, and they had been all convicted and were lying in irons awaiting confirmation of their sentence from Constantinople.

From Washington.

Washington, April 6.—The appointment of Persifer F. Smith as first in command of the Utah Expedition has exasperated Gen. Harney. The War Department was besieged by Harney's friends to-day, who wish him appointed to a command elsewhere. There is great excitement on the subject.

Mr. Colt, it is understood has made a contract with the War Department for $1,000,000 worth of his arms.

Messrs. Foley and English authorize a contradiction of any reported change on their part in favor of Lecompton.

A bill is soon to be introduced for the raising of five additional regiments of regulars.

The War Department has already been offered ten regiments of volunteers.

It is intended to reinforce Colonel Johnston with 6,000 men, including two regiments of volunteers.

Texas, Arkansas, New Mexico and Kansas, are to furnish the main body of the regulars.

Gen. Smith will leave on Wednesday, en route for Utah, to assume command.

Negotiations are again entertained here for the purchase of Sonora and other Mexican territories. Overtures for this purpose by Comonfort's government, were declined on account of the high price demanded, but it is believed that now better terms are to be had.

The special messenger sent here by Guzman will not be received by the administration, in consequence of Mr. Forsyth's advice in recognizing Zuloaga's government. The latter will retain Robles, the present minister.

XXXVth CONGRESS—First Session.

SENATE—April 6.

Mr. Slidell, of La., having filed with the Secretary on Friday last a written declaration that he intended to move to reconsider the vote to disagree with the House, on the Kansas bill, which motion yesterday and to-day he renewed verbally without any action being taken, claimed the right to keep the bill back three days for that purpose.

Mr. Stuart moved to enforce the order that no single Senator shall have the power to obstruct business.

Mr. Slidell referred to the rule and insisted on his right.

Mr. Douglas could not recognize it as a right but as a matter of courtesy.

The Presiding Officer explained that he had asked opinions.

Messrs. Bright, Crittenden and Seward expressed their views.

Finally the matter was laid on the table without action.

Mr. Bigler, of Pa., presented from Amos Kendall a supplementary memorial asking for further protection against competing telegraph companies.

The bill for the admission of Minnesota was called up as the special order. Previous to the discussion, Mr. Fitch, of Ind., read an extract from the Globe confirmatory of the words exchanged between him and Mr. Douglas yesterday, implying a lukewarmness on the part of the latter in regard to Minnesota.

Mr. Douglas warmly replied, asserting his zeal in the cause of Minnesota. The matter was of trifling import, but flat contradictions were interchanged.

Mr. Green, of Missouri, confirmed Mr. Douglas' statement.

Mr. Pugh moved an amendment to the preamble of the Minnesota bill, and appealed to Mr. Douglas to know if he was not aware that no man was allowed to vote on the Minnesota Constitution, except on the same ticket as State officers.

Mr. Douglas explained that the mode of submission was fair, fair and free. The voters put what names they chose on the tickets, and their votes were not controlled in any way.

Eventually, Mr. Pugh withdrew his suggestions respecting the preamble on Mr. Douglas striking out the words "In pursuance of said act of Congress." The preamble was then agreed to.

There being no other amendments pending, the bill was ready to be reported to the Senate, but previously Mr. Kennedy explained that he would vote against the bill, because the Constitution of Minnesota was directly at variance with the Constitution of the U. S. and diametrically opposed to the party he represented. Alien suffrage and Squatter Sovereignty, he said, must be repudiated. His remarks were strongly American.

Mr. Johnson, of Tenn., replied, arguing the right of States to fix the qualifications of their own voters independent of federal naturalization.

HOUSE—April 6.

In the House the army bill was taken up.

While several showed the necessity of the passage of the bill, including the heavy items for the Utah expedition, others earnestly condemned the incurring of debts to be discharged by appropriations to supply deficiencies.

Mr. Seward, of Ga., did not think there was any necessity of getting into difficulty with Brigham Young. The whole army operations were carried out on too magnificent a scale. He would have a law passed prohibiting army officers coming here, unless for special reasons. This is the central point from whence emanate the schemes of all the extravagance.

Mr. Taylor, of La., said nothing had occurred to justify the President in acting in such hot haste in sending the army.

Mr. Barnett, of Ky., said there is a growing disposition on the part of the Executive department to absorb the powers of the legislative branches of the government, and it was time this was checked.

Mr. Tappan, of N. H., condemned appropriations for the Utah expedition, and would not endorse the Executive usurpation of making war without the co-operation of Congress. He went into a calculation to show that the transportation of each barrel of flour from Ft. Leavenworth to Utah cost $100.

The Committee then rose, and the House adjourned.

IN TIME OF PEACE PREPARE FOR WAR.—The warm weather is at hand, and as experience in the past teaches us the best means, we would advise all who are afflicted by the change of season to get a supply of Dr. J. Does any of our high livers ever eat too much dinner? If any of our readers have cooks who tempt their appetite a little too far, I will tell a secret that will lead them to the enjoyment of their dinners without a visit from that gouty old gentleman, Dyspepsia. Take a dose of Dr. Sanford's Invigorator after eating, and you'll never be troubled with indigestion; but on the contrary, before the next meal time approaches, the appetite will be sharpened to appreciate any kind of food. If the food stays or sours, the invigorator will fix the matter right at once, for there is something in it that, to use the expression of a friend, will "i'a man out gravel stones," and take the Invigorator and they will digest. We have tried it in double doses, on one or two occasions, for sick headache, and it acts like a charm.

What we want to say to our readers, young or old, is, if anything ails you, go without delay and get a bottle of Dr. Sanford's Invigorator, and if it don't cure, come and tell us, for we want to see one person that it will not benefit. (See advertisement.)

Wednesday Morning........April 7, 1858.

Mr. Washburne's Speech on Lecompton.

ELIHU WASHBURNE, of the Galena District, is known in the House of Representatives as a working member; and as a consequence, his speeches, whenever he addresses the House, commands the undivided attention and respect of that body. We owe our readers an apology for not publishing his masterly argument delivered a few days before the vote was taken on the Lecompton Constitution. We received a copy of the speech simultaneously with the announcement of the defeat of the bill in the House by the Crittenden amendment. The subject was stale from the beginning. The proposition to force a hateful government on an unwilling people was too monstrous for argument. Nobody required to be convinced of its utter villainy. A dozen words exhausted the subject. After the defeat of the measure it was doubly stale. Mr. WASHBURNE's speech is one of the ablest productions of the session, and we would gladly give place to it even now but for the nausea which all our readers must feel for the name of Lecompton—synonymous as it is with all political depravity and ugliness.

Money is Abundant.

Money is abundant in New York. So it is; but when we say that only those who have gold to deposit as collateral can borrow it, we are guilty of no great exaggeration. Money is abundant; but confidence is wanting, and the precious hoards lie securely hidden in the inmost recesses of bank vaults, under the protection of bolts and bars, and no one has yet found the magic word which will compel them to fly back. The virtues of all the old formulas is exhausted. Men hold railroad bonds and stocks at the key-holes of bank safes, and listen vainly for a single click of coin to stimulate their hopes. Not a dime starts from its place. They were once equivalent to the "Open Sesame!" of the Arabian tale, and at the will of the holder were exchanged for mountains of wealth. A piece of brown paper or a page of the Washington Union is as powerful now. And so of most other securities—gold always excepted.—Their old magnetism by which money was drawn from its hiding places, often as much to the surprise of the borrower as to the loss of the lender, is gone, and they are displayed in Wall Street, never so temptingly, but no one buys. Men realize now that the bubble has burst, and that in the general crash and downfall, one thing—Credit—has surely risen in the market. It is no longer cheap—dog cheap—dirt cheap. "Doubtless you are good, but we not discounting now," is the polite phrase of the bank parlor, by which Midas' distrust of your scheme and your solvency is expressed. There are few exceptions to this refusal. With alterations to suit each special case, this speech is the dismissal of all applicants for cash.

Money is abundant in New York, but those who have it are able to keep it. Loans are made on short time on unexceptionable paper of unexceptionable mercantile houses, on call to men whose ability to respond at any time is undoubted, on deposit of collaterals that can be instantly converted. In a word, money is abundant with the men of money; but is tight to all besides. The rate of interest is lower; but what matters that to those who cannot borrow at any figure, great or small? Money is abundant, and, as long as it is so, it will, to be guilty of a paradox, be exceedingly scarce. As long as the banks report their two scores of millions of gold in vault, the tightness will continue. Until confidence is restored and values are found in something besides the precious metals, the stringency will be felt. When a loan can be made without the deposit of coin for security, the times will show signs of improvement. But at present, as a good-natured friend who has just returned from New York, where he rummaged Wall street up and down in pursuit of some one who would lend into his magnificent proposals,—as that friend says, "This is the period of incubation; the eagles are setting, and no allurement can draw them abroad." Money is abundant in New York.

The Rate of Exchange—What is it?

If the mercantile community are disposed to forget that the amount of money paid every year in this State for exchange is nearly or quite equal to the whole circulation of the Illinois Banks, we intend to keep the fact before the people who indirectly pay the enormous shave. Mr. JOHN THOMPSON, Ex-Broker, &c., himself a considerable dealer in the article, used to say that exchange was a fraud, and the rate of exchange a lie to cover it. Perhaps this was an epigrammatic way of expressing it, but it is substantially true, and cannot be gainsayed. Let us illustrate.

Two commercial centers are buying and selling each other's products and manufactures. Their currency is the same. A dollar in one place is a dollar in the other. Each employs the world's recognized standard of value, or at least its representative, convertible at any moment into the universal medium of exchange. To make rapid settlements between these cities, banks are instituted which undertake the collection of all bills as fast as they mature, and, to avoid the frequent shipment of money to cancel individual indebtedness, furnish Mr. A. who has bought goods of Mr. B. in one place, the bill incurred by Mr. C. of the same city, for flour and beef bought of Mr. A.'s neighbor, Mr. D. Mr. A remits to Mr. B., who collects of Mr. C., who thus discharges his indebtedness to Mr. D.—and the whole business is done without the transportation of a dime between the two cities. Each man who avails himself of these facilities is willing to pay something for the banker's services. If Mr. Banker wants to make money too fast and gets in the habit of overcharging, Mr. A. and the rest of his customers, have only to remit the money and pay a trivial per cent. to somebody who makes a living by carrying it. The money will come back again when Mr. C. settles with Mr. D. The loss incurred in settling the balance is equal to the banker's "rate of exchange" in the one case, or the carrier's charge in the other; and properly speaking this is no more a loss than the rate of freight or rate of insurance between the same cities.

We have been supposing that the traders of the two localities used the same currency, or the same kind of a currency—one which was instantly convertible into gold and silver. The balance of trade will rule against one place as often as against the other. If it were not so, the accumulated balance against the one would send it into bankruptcy, and destroy its credit with the other. The rate of exchange is properly the commission for the banker's trouble, and the interest on his capital if he has any, which is not always the case. But when the banking gentlemen can create a poorer currency in one place than that used by the other, and induce people to conduct all their business transactions with it, they can make a rate of exchange equal to the cost of converting it into as good a currency as that used by the merchants and manufacturers of the other. This is exactly what our bankers have done, and this difference of values is exactly what we are paying under the catchword of Exchange. Shall we not have a specie basis for Illinois currency?

Emigration.

We see by the Dubuque papers, that vigorous measures are being taken in Dubuque and [illegible] to the State. The Board of Directors of the Emigrant Association at their last meeting authorized the Secretary to engage the services of a German Agent to [illegible] and to publish an edition of 10,000 copies of a pamphlet in the German language, setting forth the advantages of [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible].

The Would-be Army of Utah.

The valorous young gentlemen of Chicago who have been burning with soldierly zeal to shoot, impale, trample or otherwise put to death a battalion, or if need be, a whole city of Mormons, must bottle up their ire, and keep it hot for some other occasion. Their dreams of rushing into Mormon harems, amid the horrors of an assault, and rescuing therefrom the imprisoned beauties in danger of death from bursting bombs or red hot cannon shot, all go for naught. Their visions of a "gel-o-rious campaign," of scenes of high conviviality in camp, of hair's-breadth 'scapes in the field, of shining political rewards upon their return, of future histories in which their names would appear within halos of glory, shining out from the forum and field, were only mockeries. They can't go! Their patriotic offerings are not accepted. The President, though each were a Curtius, will have none of them. He has taken a regiment of seedy rags-a-muffins from New York; another from Pennsylvania, and the third must come from the South. Oh, sad fate! A thousand embryo conquerors, doomed to die without chipping their shells or uttering a single peep! An hundred militia officers, from corporal to commander, condemned to air their vanity and feathers only for the delectation of the boys and servant girls in this windy city. Soldiers of the Army of Utah, a thousand centuries command you to—go to work! That will cool your valor.

McLean County.

The Democrats of McLean County held a Convention, at Bloomington, on Saturday, and eight Delegates to the State Convention were elected. Strong Anti-Lecompton resolutions were unanimously adopted, and the Delegates to the State Convention were instructed to vote as an unit in favor of the course pursued by Mr. Douglas.

Arrest of a Counterfeiter.

[Correspondence of the Chicago Tribune.]

GALESBURG, April 3, 1858.

The police of our city last evening arrested N. B. Latta, more familiarly known as "Bone Latta." They found in his possession over $2,000 in counterfeit money on the Agricultural Bank of Pittsfield, Mass., all two's, and well executed. In default of $3,000 bail, he was committed.

Yours truly, A. C. WEST.

Rowdyism of Volunteer Fire Companies.

Careful and patient investigation has demonstrated that much of the crime in Philadelphia can be traced directly to the Engine Houses of the Volunteer Fire Companies of that city. We say crime, and we mean it, not mere rowdyism and turbulence, but positive crime against persons and property. In New York the same thing is observable, and we have a like report from Baltimore. Says the Exchange, a new and able paper of the latter city, in the course of an article on a Paid Department and Steam Fire Engines:

"But apart from its superiority over the engines at present in use, there are other reasons in favor of the use of steam fire engines, which ought not to be without their weight in this community. One-half of the disorders and disturbances which take place in our city may be traced to the fire companies, their rivalry and feuds. The fire department as at present organized, is the prolific source of vice, lawlessness, dissipation and crime. Only last week a member of one of the fire companies was shot dead by an adherent of a rival company, while proceeding to a fire. Every time the alarm bell sounds, the city is thrown into confusion, and the streets are filled with a disorderly throng of men, boys, engines, and hose carriages, rushing pell mell, helter-skelter, with noise and racket, and not unfrequently coming into collision and engaging in desperate and bloody riots. Many of the engine houses are the known and notorious haunts of ruffians and bullies, who daily and nightly congregate to the terror of the neighborhood and of peaceful passers by. One-half of the lawlessness which characterises the rising generation of half grown men and boys who constitute the membership of most of the companies may be attributed to this source, while in times of political excitement the partizan character of many of their organizations has materially increased the amount of violence and bloodshed incident usually to hotly contested elections and to fireman's feuds. The worst of these evils will be altogether removed by the substitution of steam fire engines, which require neither men to drag them to the fire, nor to keep them in operation, but simply the services of a practical engineer, to manage their machinery, and of a pipeman to direct the application of the water, which, in steady and copious streams, they pour upon the fire. For the sake of the peace and good order of the city, therefore, as well as the preservation of property, the project of the First Baltimore Hose Company is entitled to the support and encouragement of our citizens."

We commend this extract to the Common Council of Chicago. The members of that body need something to quicken them in the discharge of the duty which they owe to those who have entrusted them with the general supervision of their property.

The "New Orleans Deutsche Zeitung" on Wm. H. Seward, the American Statesman.

[Translated from the Illinois Staats Zeitung.]

The New Orleans Deutsche Zeitung, is a kind of out-post of the time to come in the bastile land of to-day. Its opinions cannot be said to be dictated by party interests. It cannot, in the State of Louisiana, whose House of Representatives have recently adopted resolutions in favor of the importation of African slaves, belong to any political party without prostituting the German sentiment. There, as in Texas, the Germans are in an expectant position and must content themselves with undermining the Slave power by practical demonstration that free white labor can not only exist in the South, but be more profitable than Slave labor. We are glad to see that the opinion of the New Orleans journal concerning Wm. H. Seward, coincides exactly with our own, and this coincidence strengthens our views that he is just the man for the place, albeit those members of his own party would prefer to set him aside, who wish to replace by party drill all statesmen who have the interest and destiny of the Republic more at heart than the interest of the party. We have seen enough small men placed in the Presidential Chair by the Democratic party. Buchanan has excelled Pierce, while Pierce surpassed Polk, in littleness and meanness. The whole government has become a piece of mechanism moved by party wire-pullers. For many years there have been no men of creative ideas and superior genius in the White House. In Mr. Seward we have the hope of such a man. The opinion of the New Orleans paper on the statesman and his great speech of March 3d, is as follows:

"Mr. Seward's speech is a masterpiece of statesmanlike rhetoric, and will outlive its author and our time. It will be a beacon-light on the waves of the strife just begun, by which later generations will be guided on their way. Friends and foes will read it with equal attention, and both will be refreshed by the manly tone which pervades it.

"This speech has rent the veil which had been thrown over the nameless battle now raging, and under the protection of which the demagogues were fighting for their paltry interests. To how many petty contests has not the great question over which the battle rages already given the occasion! How have its limits been obliterated to draw it down to the level of Lilliputian circumstances! The duration or the downfall of the magnificent structure erected by the enthusiasm of liberty—a structure whose splendid dimensions had already, in the dreams of patriots, extended across the continent—seems to the pigmies who have their hands on it, merely a question which they can suck themselves to greatness.

"We now enter upon a new phase of the combat. Mr. Seward has laid down the plan on which it is thenceforth to be conducted, with perfect clearness. He has raised the standard of the North with a steady hand, and thrown down the gauntlet to the South, without insult or invective. In a short time the arena will be full of Titans, where till now, under the protection of the mist, the pigmies did their work, perhaps already to the ruin of the Republic."

THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN RELIGIOUS MEN AND CHRISTIANS.—At the prayer meeting at Burton's Theatre in New York, on Saturday, Henry Ward Beecher described the difference between religious men and Christians: "He drew a distinction between desire and choice. The ragged vagabond desires to be rich, but he desires laziness more; and we choose that which we most desire. If a man desires to be a Christian, and the desire is so strong that he is willing to relinquish everything for this—ambition, business, pleasure or whatever the sacrifice requires—there was no reason why he should not become a Christian that instant. Men who simply desire Christianity are only religious men; they are not Christians. He believed there were thousands of people in the churches who are only religious and not Christians. They live in fear—they are almost literally God's bondmen; but he who is a Christian, is drawn to it by something in Christ which he can love and worship. He often found it necessary when people came from other churches to his, to try to turn them out of religion into Christianity."

"FATHA GUEBBA," OR NO WIFE.—A divorce case has been commenced at Rochester based on a very novel plea. The Advertiser says the parties have been married but a few months, and occupy a high position in society. Some interesting developments are expected. It seems the difficulty, as set forth in the complaint which is very long, originated in a dispute between Mr. B. and his wife as to whether they would have [illegible] ... [illegible].

A FUGITIVE SLAVE CASE.

HOW THEY DID AND THEN THEY DIDN'T.

[From the Pittsburg Gazette.]

A gallant pimp of the Fugitive Slave law, from Uniontown, accompanied by a Virginia gentleman, one of the "second families," we presume, as his name was Mr. Stump, went up to Blairsville, on Thursday last, to catch an alleged run-away slave. A third man appears to have been along to identify this chattel, one of the contented, happy and fat laborers of the South, who, Mr. Hammond says, have no aspirations for anything above their lot. Very well; Mr. Stump aforesaid, in company with the aforesaid U. S. Deputy Marshal from Uniontown, whose name we do not remember, and, in fact, do not know, made a grand entree into the quiet village of Blairsville, with thoughts intent upon carrying back to his own proper owner the aforesaid runaway and contumacious chattel. They caught the negro man; they had with them all the means and appliances for carrying out "summary justice," so desirable in cases of this delicate nature. They had there the master; also a representative of the dignity of these United States when the goddess of liberty, which is supposed to preside over their destinies, for the time goes out from her sacred temple and scours the country for such of her admirers as may be guilty of a tawny skin. The representative of the late Mr. Buchanan, of Lecompton memory, was on the ground, plucky as a hen, and well armed.—Another body was also by to swear that he knew the negro man, if necessary.

Every thing being in readiness and the "nigger" safe in hand, an unforeseen contingency occurred. From all parts of that rebellious borough of Blairsville, the black Republicans, the haters of this union of the States, the Anti-Lecompton men, the negroes even, together with the mud sills, rushed as if by one concerted movement upon the gallant deputy, the proud Virginia gentleman, Mr. Stump, and the third man who was along. They defended their sacred charge with the greatest gallantry.—Blows were given and taken; shots were exchanged; the brave stump let fly a volley from his revolver into the crowd, but as nobody was hit, it was supposed his pistol contained only powder. The friend of "James," the U. S. Deputy Marshal, it is said, showed the most decided proclivities towards the use of shoe leather. A pair of coat tails seemed to be his only desire, and he wanted them only for exhibition behind a rapidly vanishing posterior. His views were philosophical. They were, moreover, poetic, as in his opinion

"Distance would lend enchantment to the view."

These rebellious mud-sills actually rescued the slave man. Aye, the burning disgrace is upon them which Moses incurred when he led a whole nation of fugitive slaves through the divided waters of the Red Sea. The "Blairsvillians" took the slave away and concealed him, or shipped him on the underground railway, or got him out of sight in some sort. It was "presto change"—now this little joker was here and now he was not. After the rescue was complete, the dignity of the Fugitive Slave Law—as personated by the deputy Marshal and Mr. Stump, one of the second Families, and the other body—found it necessary to beat a speedy retreat out of the town. They were, in fact, with many marks of indignity, driven out and expelled. They in much haste withdrew towards the junction of the Blairsville with the Pennsylvania Railroad, a distance from this rebellious village of some two miles.

The crowd followed, pelting them till they were beyond the limits. But when they had got a good part of the way towards the station, a party of "niggers," who were by the way side as if to make an ambush, set upon them, and Mr. Stump had to stir his stumps anew. After other hair breadth 'scapes too numerous to mention in this succinct history, the gallant band of kidnappers got in safety to the junction, and further than this deponent saith not on this subject.

A Terrible Civil War—Two Hundred and Twenty-Eight Prisoners Massacred.

A private letter received in Salem, Mass., gives the following terrible story of the awful atrocities committed in the Banda Oriental country. The letter is dated Montevideo, February 6:

"We are still in a state of civil war in this unfortunate province. This time there has been much bloodshed—some 700 lives having already been sacrificed to the cause of Liberty. (How that word is abused!)

"Gen Dias was defeated, about a week since, some 250 miles in the interior, and over 300 prisoners surrendered to the government troops. After sending to this place, to the government, to know what disposition should be made of the prisoners, the President sent orders, in hour afterwards, to shoot 28 officers and cut the throats of nearly 200 of the soldiers.

"Among the officers were General Cesar Dias, who had been serving his country all his lifetime, and was in command of the [illegible] Freire, when Rosas fell, and a man who bore an excellent character; Gen. Freire, one of the veterans of thirty-three, and his son, a Colonel, with other officers of not much lower grade.

"This has been one of the most brutal butcheries that ever stained the annals of this country. It outstrips Rosas and Oribe altogether. When it was known that the order had been sent out for this wholesale slaughter, the English and French ministers, and both Admirals, the Spanish minister, American commodore and American Consul, all went to see the President, to supplicate mercy for these poor fellows, but in vain.

"About twenty of the first ladies of this place also went, among whom were the sister of the President's wife, Senora Vidal; Senora Castellanos, wife of the President of the Senate; Mrs. Hoqueira, President of the Charitable Association; the widow of Gen. Pacheco; the widow of Gen. Lavelleaux; and indeed all were ladies of the first respectability. They even went down on their knees, supplicating pardon for those Oriental officers, but they were turned away with insult, and the poor fellows were shot like dogs.

"All of them leave large families, which were entirely dependent upon them for support. It has placed the whole city in mourning. No decent lady appears in the street without being dressed in deep mourning. Everybody, of both political parties, is horror stricken at this awful destruction of life.

"The consequences will, I fear, be dreadful, and we begin to see it already. The cavalry escaped at the surrender of Dias, and have been making dreadful work; they have already visited several villages, and cut the throat of every blanco they encountered—men, women and children—and destroyed their property to as great an extent as possible. This vengeance does not fall upon the guilty only, but on any of the adherents of the party that did the awful deed above mentioned.

"Last year we had the yellow fever, which carried off about two thousand of the inhabitants of this place, and now this civil war is continuing the destruction of human lives."

Emancipation in Missouri.

The New Orleans Crescent concedes that Missouri must become a Free State in ten years. On this subject it says:

"We have frequently expressed the opinion in times past, that Missouri was gradually, but surely, approaching a condition that would secure a triumph of the emancipation cause in that State, and an easy triumph at that. The period which has elapsed since has confirmed those opinions; and we apprehend little doubt that emancipation will succeed in its work before the expiration of a decade. Hemmed in on the North, East and West by free soil territory—with slave property becoming daily more insecure and less valuable for that reason—and with the extraordinary inducements to sell which the high prices of negroes further South readily command, furnish, it would be wonderful rather than otherwise if the slaveholders then did not dispose of their property and pocket the proceeds, without any regard or care for its effects upon the existence of the patriarchal institution at home. Such is human nature everywhere.

"Missouri is partially free-soilized now, and has been for some time, the St. Louis District being represented in Congress by an open and avowed Free-soiler—F. P. Blair, Jr.—and there is no question whatever in the minds of intelligent men, that the Anti-Slavery sentiment is increasing in all portions of the Commonwealth. About the time Missouri goes, Kentucky and Maryland will follow suit, and thus the South will be shorn of three great States—deprived of three great frontier bulwarks. And the beauty of the thing consists in this: We will have paid the money to deprive ourselves of allies, and to weaken our own section! The profound wisdom of such a policy is so apparent that he who runneth may read!"

In view of these results the Crescent puts forth the following feeler toward a renewal of the African Slave trade:

"But let any one propose to prevent the impending catastrophe, by the introduction of additional labor from abroad, or by the adoption of any precautionary measures of any description, and he is at once cried down as an enemy to the Union, even if harder and more reprehensible terms are not used, by gentlemen who illustrate in their action the proverb of straining at the gnat and swallowing the camel."

"The South begins to see that no new State is likely to have a population favorable to Slavery. Even in Texas, when another State shall be carved from her territory, there will be a large majority of the people against the peculiar institution. Considerations of political economy, rather than of morals, control the domain of Slavery. In the cotton and sugar States it is profitable, and, consequently, will be concentrated. Instead of expecting more Slaves, the planters look for more negroes. As yet they go to Virginia, where slaves are dear; but they intend to seek a cheaper market in Africa. Each year will witness stronger demonstrations in favor of the foreign Slave trade. "Such is human nature everywhere."

A punster says, "My name is Somerset. I am a miserable bachelor. I cannot marry, for how could I hope to prevail on any young lady possessed of the slightest notions of delicacy to turn a Somerset?"

Commercial Failures since the first of January—A Bankrupt Law Wanted.

[From the New York Herald.]

We publish to-day a list of the failures which have occurred in the United States from the first of January to the 26th of March of the present year, and the total will be found somewhat alarming, though by no means unexpected after the late fearful financial panic. The number of failures for the first eighty-five days of the year was 1,495, and the total amount of liabilities is set down at thirty millions, six hundred and thirty-nine thousand dollars. If we add to this forty-five failures in the British Provinces, figuring up a million and ninety-four thousand dollars more, we have a grand total for the United States and Canada of 1,540 failures and $31,733,000 of liabilities.

The following is the list:

Last year there were over six thousand failures, with debts to the amount in all of nearly three hundred millions of dollars. While the number of failures for the first quarter of this year is in proportion to last, it will be seen that the amount is disproportionately small, showing that it is small concerns which are breaking down now.

One singularity about this statement is, that it shows that the central, the western, and the sugar growing States, are in a woful condition, while the cotton growing States of the South, and all the New England States are sound.

All the failures which we record to-day should legitimately have occurred last year.—They have only been protracted by the parties obtaining extension. That grace is exhausted now, and they fall by sheer inanity. This was inevitable; for these houses based their engagements on the prices at which goods and produce rated before the revulsion, and consequently they are unable to meet them now that the rates have fallen from 40 to 80 per cent.—In 1837 the result was the same, but then the smashing continued for almost three years, and in all probability we shall see the same thing now. In the first weeks of 1837 over five hundred merchants in New York alone broke down. Others held on for a time, propping themselves by extensions; but until 1840 they continued to drop, when the number of failures in the Union amounted to nearly forty thousand, and the bankrupt law which went into operation in 1842 wiped out $450,000,000 of debts, and released over thirty-eight thousand bankrupts. In a panic, large houses are the first to go, then follow the banks, and little concerns follow them. The great drag down the small. The banks recovered themselves quicker in this revulsion than in 1837, because they held more specie, and their bills were issued on a surer basis; but we see that the failures of commercial houses are still going on. There is but one remedy for this, and that is a good bankrupt law, applicable to individuals, banks, railroads and all corporations. If the houses that are breaking now could have settled with their creditors long ago, by the operation of a bankrupt law, and started afresh, basing the business on the new state of affairs which panics always leave behind them, many of them would be now in a safer and more thriving condition; but by the present system commercial disasters are protracted but not avoided.

Menander in New York—Prof. Felton's Discovery in Dr. Abbott's Museum.

[From the New York Evening Post.]

Probably every school boy, in the course of his instructions in penmanship, has had the copy, "Evil communications corrupt good manners," but without knowing that it came from the pen of a Greek play-writer, much less that in the city of New York there were some wax tablets used by school-boys in Alexandria in the age of the Ptolemies, where, in the careful chirography of the schoolmaster and the blundering penmanship of his pupils, was preserved another wise saying, probably from the same shrewd pen. Such is the fact, however, though it took a Greek professor to find it out. In the proceedings of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences we find a paper, read by Prof. C. C. Felton, of Harvard University, giving an account of his visit to Dr. Abbott's collection of Egyptian antiquities—which shows that a good many hundred Broadway omnibuses daily rattle by a building full of antiquities rarer and more curious than those in any European museum. In Dr. Abbott's museum, the Professor says, there are mummies of the Bull-god, Apis, in excellent preservation, not a single specimen of which is to be found in any European collection; splendid papyri, perfect in their characters and preservation; and evidences that the relations of fox and goose were not unknown to the Egyptian mind. What attracted his chief attention were the wax tablets which we have mentioned. They are very much of the shape of the small school slate, common now-a-days, but thicker, and made entirely of wood, one side of which is covered with a thin coating of wax, and are six by four in size. The wax is entirely hardened, and is as black as iron. One of the tablets is in almost complete preservation, and all contain written Greek characters. On examining the best one with a magnifying glass, Prof. Felton, after an hour or two of inspection, succeeded in copying all except the first syllable of a single word which ended a line. Here was a fine opportunity for critical conjecture, and the learned Grecian did not hesitate to avail himself of it, supplying the syllable and completing the writing. He humorously confesses, however, that his critical conjecture was, like most of its kind, wrong. The more perfect tablet was probably that of the schoolmaster, but the tablets of the school-boys supplied the missing word, and enabled him to complete the text without the slightest doubt as to any part of it. The characters are of the square or uncial form, and closely resemble those of the Alexandrinian Greek manuscripts. All the circumstances indicate that the tablet is three or four hundred years older than the oldest in any European collection—even older than the age of Aristophanes, the grammarian, who invented accents to teach foreigners Greek. The lines are six in number, and are written across the waxen surface. With a little examination, they proved to be three iambic trimeters, which, literally translated, runs as follows:

"When, dating [illegible]
"[illegible]
"[illegible]

The style of these lines, the peculiar turn of thought, the satire and spirit of the epigram matic point, led the professor to attribute them to Menander, or at all events, to some poet of the "New Comedy, which delights in general delineations of character, and in sententious expressions embodying the wit and wisdom drawn from the observation of society." In the rest of his paper, Prof. Felton shows how highly probable it is that the fragment came from Menander, whose works were known and read from near King Philip's time to the days of the Crusaders, and were so popular that fragments of them were passed as proverbs from mouth to mouth. The tablet is very curious, Prof. Felton remarks, because it contains more writing than any hitherto discovered, excepting the Latin tablets of the second century. It is also curious as showing that the children in old times had their proverbs or witty apophthegms for their copy-books, just as the children in the schools have now-a-days, and as preserving, in all probability, a fragment of Menander, who said, a long time ago, that "Evil communications corrupt good manners," a phrase which was translated by Tertullian and quoted by St. Paul. It is curious, too, that one of the wise sayings of the old Greek, after being bandied about for centuries, should lie hid for many more, and finally turn up for the first time amid the din of Broadway and in the chief city of a continent whose existence was not then so much as suspected.

THE FLORIDA INDIANS.—We learn from the efficient and energetic Agent of the Creek Indians, Col. Wm. H. Garrett, who passed through our city on Saturday, that Billy Bowlegs and his warriors—about fifty or sixty in number—had all agreed to remove, and that Sam Jones and his party, only some forty in number, being the remainder of the tribe, will in all probability consent to emigrate also. This will put a terminus to the "Florida war"—not quite as important, but almost as long as the Peloponnesian of olden times.

The price agreed upon is some $1,000 to the chiefs, $500 to the warriors each, and $150 for the squaws—less than the amount offered for their capture by the Government.

This method is much more humane, and far more expeditious than urging a petty war upon a handful of savages at double the expense, and of interminable duration. For a year or more the Government had been offering $500 for the capture of each warrior, and $250 for each squaw, and up to the present time but few had been taken.

The negotiation for their emigration was conducted by Col. Garrett in person, and great credit is due him for the ability and judgment displayed in this delicate business.—Van Buren (Ark.) Courier, March 13.

Getting Even With Him.

We have been furnished with the particulars of a malicious but very laughable hoax, perpetrated upon the clerk of a Louisville and New Orleans packet, which we cannot resist the temptation to detail for the amusement of our readers.

During the last upward trip of the boat, the clerk, who is a highly respectable citizen of Louisville, was compelled, for some misconduct, to put a fellow by the name of Rogers ashore at Memphis. This is a circumstance by no means uncommon, and in the bustle and cares of a heavy passenger trip, was soon forgotten.

On the arrival of the boat at Cairo, Ill., the clerk was surprised by a visit from an officer, who informed him that he was authorized to arrest him on a charge of grand larceny committed in New Orleans. He was, of course, highly indignant at so degrading an accusation, and insisted that there must be some mistake about it. The dispatch, however, not only expressly named him, but furnished a particular and exact description of his personal appearance, and the officer said he had no alternative but to take him into custody. After considerable difficulty and delay, the matter was finally compromised by the clerk finding security for his return to Cairo in the course of a week, provided the matter was not by that time satisfactorily cleared up.

He was far from having solved the mystery of the attempted abridgment of his personal liberty, and the cause assigned for it—although he spent a sleepless night in pondering upon it—when the boat reached Evansville. Before she was fairly landed, she was boarded by the city marshal, who informed the clerk that he had a warrant for his arrest for a rape committed under circumstances peculiarly diabolical, in the neighborhood of Baton Rouge. Without attempting any explanation, the outraged steamboatmen knocked the legal functionary down; ordered the mate to pick up and put him ashore; immediately slipped cable and bore ahead for Louisville.

He by this time began to believe that Heaven and earth had united in a conspiracy either to ruin him or drive him mad; and the inexplicable circumstances of his attempted arrests so wrought upon his mind that he at one time had nearly resolved to put a period to his troubles and perplexities by jumping overboard and becoming food for the cat-fishes and mud suckers of the turbid Ohio.

At New Albany new and still greater trials awaited him. The boat on landing was forcibly taken possession of by the city marshal and a formidable posse comitatus, which had been summoned to prevent a repetition of the escape from Evansville, the particulars of which he had been fully advised by telegraph. The enormity of the charge had also increased, having now attained the magnitude of manslaughter! Utterly overwhelmed by the inexorable fate which pursued him, the unhappy clerk yielded without further attempt at resistance, and permitted himself quietly to be led to jail. Hardly had its inhospitable doors closed upon him, when a dozen officers arrived in haste from Louisville, to arrest him for murder! This terrible climax opened the supposed culprit's eyes, and all at once it flashed through his wool that he was the victim of a hoax. Asking to see the dispatch authorizing his arrest, he found it dated at Memphis and signed, "Rogers of the New Orleans Detective Police," whom he at once recognized as the rascal he had put ashore at that place. The activity of the officers in attempting his arrest, was explained by the magnificent rewards which the fellow had offered for his apprehension. Telegraphic explanations followed, and after a few hours' incarceration, he was restored to liberty. He says the relatives of Rogers can make a speculation by getting his life insured for their own benefit, as, if it is not charmed against fire and steel, it will be very suddenly terminated if he ever comes within his reach.—Lafayette Journal.

THE PRESS IN PARIS.—Publishing a newspaper—always an arduous task—must be peculiarly distressing about these times in Paris. The government enjoys the right not merely of strangling the publication of a journal for offensive expressions used by it, but also of making its intention the cause of instant suppression, on the vague pretext of "public security." We do not learn that this extreme has yet been resorted to, but it has been threatened in the authoritative quarter. The actual condition of journalism in the French capital is dismal enough. Thus, the Presse has, indeed, been permitted to reappear after three months' suspension, at a loss, it is estimated, of 200,000 francs; but it is not allowed to be sold in the streets, and its insecurity has reduced it to the lowest stage of mediocrity. The Siecle, the ablest organ of republican tendencies, has also just been deprived of the privilege of being sold in the street. The Debats has been compelled to banish its ablest writer from its columns, simply on the ground that his articles were not "agreeable" to the government. He kept strictly within the letter of the law; but the journal was given to understand that his retention would do it no good. Even religious discussions are forbidden—the proprietors of the religious journals having been invited to the Department of the Interior and there distinctly so informed. These things are hard to realise in this stage of the world, and in a country so enlightened as France.

It is reported that since his arrival in this country, on a certain occasion a lady was admiring an elegant cashmere shawl worn by the Turkish Admiral. He gallantly took it from his shoulders and laid it on her own to witness its effect, or, perhaps, momentarily to gratify her vanity. The shawl was a magnificent one, costing $4,000 or $5,000. Imagine the surprise of the Admiral, when she blushingly courtesied to him, and moved gracefully off with the coveted shawl as—a present.

TOO GOOD TO BE LOST.—A gentleman from Buffalo says that he has ceased to hate the doughfaces in Congress who support Lecompton, and only pities them. To their supporters at home, who are under no obligation thus to degrade themselves, and have nothing to gain by it, he applies the exclamation of Dumas, when he caught another man kissing his ugly wife: "Good heavens! and without being obliged to!"

It is stated that Louis Napoleon has exiled thirty-two thousand men. Of these, thirty thousand have been pardoned. The recent arrests are said to have been made almost entirely from among the pardoned. The prisons of Paris are crowded with political offenders.—Punch says if the system of arrests is continued much longer, France will consist of two classes only—those in jail and the jailors.

A HARD CASE.—The Bridgeport (Conn.) Standard says that Mr. Bishop, the Lecompton member of Congress from that District, could be re-elected about as easily as Dives could go a-skating.

FIVE NEGROES BURNED TO DEATH.—On the 13th ult., on the plantation of Thomas P. and James O. Randle, near Chunnenuggee, Macon county, Alabama, a house was burned, and five negro children destroyed in the flames. It is supposed to have been accidental.

AN ITEM.—It is said that the cost of printing Emory's Report of the Mexican Boundary Survey—a work which no one has read, and few have even seen—was $277,300! Nothing could more clearly demonstrate the infamy of our Public Printing system.

European Gossip.

The Paris correspondent of the Philadelphia Bulletin says: "It is reported that M. de Lamartine is about to dispose, by means of a lottery, of his estates at Monceaux, St. Point and Milly. The tickets—six hundred thousand at 5f. each—make a sum total of three million francs! If they are all disposed of, the public will, it is hoped, be no longer pathetically appealed to for the twentieth time to save from the foot of the stranger the paternal acres of the home of the poet's childhood. Three millions ought to prove a balm for his harrowed feelings and finally give him back the family hand-irons the public has so often been called upon to take out of pawn. Though the lottery has not yet been officially announced, the report astonishes no one.

"Madame Grisi is again delighting the Parisian amateurs of good acting, but though this consummate actress is still unsurpassed in Norma, her voice painfully proves the ravages of time. In Leonora of the 'Trovatore,' even her friends allow she is no longer possible. Those who remember the debut of this pupil of Mme. Pasta sigh as they note the failing vocal powers of this once unrivaled singer, who shows such reluctance to leave, while she can yet do so gracefully, the scene of her former triumphs.

A considerable agitation has been of late manifested in the neighborhood of Lourdes (Hautes Pyrenes,) by a visit which a young girl of fourteen, named Bernadette Savi, the daughter of a day laborer, pays every morning early to a grotto in which springs forth a gush of water forming a rivulet not far from the banks of the Gave. This girl affirms that the Virgin Mary has appeared to her, and ordered that she should every morning for a fortnight pray in the grotto during the space of half an hour. A vast number of persons accompany her in her visits, believing fully in the truth of her assertion. At first when she kneels she is represented as being pale, and almost convulsed; but as her communication with the Virgin proceeds her features become calm and radiant. We understand that not less than five thousand persons are present now each morning near the grotto, and that the authorities are beginning to disapprove of such assemblages.

A Paris correspondent of the N. Y. Times relates the following: "The late Washington ball at the American Legation in this city was the subject of a bon mot dropped by the French Minister of War, which ought to have publicity. Marshal Vaillant remonstrated with Mr. Mason previous to the ball, on the inappropriateness of giving a fete during Lent, and asked if it were not a mistake. 'It is a mistake,' replied Mr. Mason, 'it was Washington who made it, for that is his birthday, and the ball is in honor of the event.' 'Oh, that is it,' replied the Marshal; 'then it is the only mistake he ever made in his life!' The Marshal was one of the first guests at the ball, a concession he made to the name of Washington, for he is a strict observer of the requirements of Lent. When the orchestra in opening the gaities of the evening, commenced the national air 'Hail Columbia!' the whole company spontaneously rose to their feet."

The famous affair of "the Queen's diamond necklace," which made so much noise just before the outbreak of the great revolution of 1789, is about to come on again before the courts of Paris, the heirs and representatives of Boehmer and Bossange, the jewellers who supplied the necklace, having brought an action against the heirs and representatives of Cardinal de Rohan, the Prince de Rohan, now residing in Bohemia, to obtain payment for it out of the Cardinal's estate, it having been confided by them to him. In this action some of the heirs of other creditors of the cardinal have intervened in order to obtain payment of what is due to them.

An important discovery in architecture is announced in Europe. For a long time it has been an opinion that the singular harmony which reigns in the proportions of the architectural monuments of the dark ages was not the result of mere accident, and that there must be some mathematical secret unknown to the present age. This secret a German, Mr. Henszlmann, has found. It was a secret which belonged to antiquity as well as to the Greek and Roman Epochs. It presided as well at the construction of Solomon's Temple, as at the Parthenon's of Rome and Athens. The discovery of Mr. Henszlmann was the result of study. With his plumb-line, square and compass, he travelled through Germany, Italy, France and England, measuring and calculating, and finding in all the structures of the different ages of the past, the same harmonious lines. He has demonstrated beyond contradiction the co-relation of the Greek with the middle age architecture.

The Paris correspondent of the N. Y. Times says: "In the new opera of M. Halevy, the Magicienne, which is about to appear at the Grand Opera, a game of chess will be played by the corps de ballet. In this animated game the dancers will be dressed in the costume of the various pieces of the chess-board, so that chess players in the audience can follow each move. For the invention of this singular interlude, M. Mazilier, chef de danse, claims the priority. But it seems that the same thing has been done at Mobile, in Alabama. At Mobile there is a society of anonymous young men, who meet once a year for a masquerade. This year this society ordered their costumes from Paris—it is thus that the circumstance is known here—and these costumes represented an old German tableau on an old bridge at Munich, which has been popularized by lithography and photography. The picture represents the genius of good and the genius of evil, sitting face to face, with a large chequer board between them, on which they play the destinies of humanity. Satan moves the black pieces, of which each represents a vice. The white pieces, representing virtues, are moved by his adversary. In the secret carnival club at Mobile the members even do not know each other. They appear suddenly in the street, or in their place of reunion, without the public or themselves knowing from whence they came. This year, as just mentioned, a ball was to have taken place on the last Monday of carnival, in which sixteen Vices were to struggle with sixteen Virtues, on a chequer-board of black and white marble. The idea of the master-dancer at the Grand Opera is not, therefore, new."

The President and his Niece.

Mixed feelings are started in the reading of the following sketch of the personal appearance of Mr. Buchanan and his niece, Miss Lane, who does the honors of the drawing and dining rooms:

"The President's appearance is admirably reproduced by the engravings which are now strewn through every community. He is remarkably fresh and vigorous for one of his age, and the manner in which his alert eye discriminates among the visitors—always showing an extra favor to members of the press—rather confirms a prevalent impression as to his ambition for a second term of office. Near him stands Miss Lane, his niece, and president of the domestic circle, she is surrounded with a group of admirers of both sexes, and performs the duties of her station in charming style. Though not classically beautiful, she certainly has some irresistible attractions. She is rather above the medium height, was simply attired in black, with less regard to the display of the material than of her finely developed figure and cheerful face, which constantly beams with good nature and intelligence. She is evidently aware of her charms, and displays more of them than usual, though to do this she rather 'outstrips' the rest of her sex—her dresses being cut down some two or three inches below the turn of her finely rounded shoulders, which are of ivory whiteness, and challenge the sculptor's skill as well as the amateur's enthusiasm. But her benevolent countenance and well-bred style indicate other attractions than mere good looks, and if her future life shall be blessed with indulgence, it will certainly show a remarkable resistance to Cupid's influences as her distinguished uncle has already shown on his part."

Akin to this comes to mind the gossip, that has but a limited range so far, that Keitt's famous but unfortunate attack upon Grow in the House, when the former stubbed his toe, got some of its animus at least from the the fact that they were rivals for the smiles of the belle of the White House, and Grow, being a widower, was just then making progress in her favor rather faster than Keitt, who, being a bachelor, has not learned the key to woman's heart.—Keitt, having been more amiable since, has perhaps got "Old Buck" on his side, certainly she could not be a dutiful niece in this, his political emergency, to give aid and comfort to the enemies of Lecompton.

BLOODY RENCOUNTER—ONE MAN KILLED AND ANOTHER MORTALLY WOUNDED.—We learn that on Saturday a bloody rencounter took place at Springfield between two young men of that place, Mr. Booker, better known as McBooker, and Mr. Ben. Palmer, son of Dr. Palmer. The parties met in the street, and exchanged several shots, and Palmer then threw his pistol at Booker. The latter drew a knife, and though mortally wounded, summoned strength enough to cut Palmer literally to pieces. The difficulty, we understand, had its origin in the election of captain of a company for Utah, which had been organized in Springfield. Booker and Palmer were candidates for the office, and the former was chosen.—Louisville Journal.

SURRENDER OF BILLY BOWLEGS.—The Madison (Fla.) Messenger has reliable information that Billy Bowlegs "has surrendered his sword, and is now at Tampa with his whole party, waiting the consummation of arrangements now being made, to be transferred to the west. It is said the old gentleman was in a shockingly ragged and dirty condition when he presented himself at Tampa."

Criminal Affair at Palmer, Mass.

[From the Springfield, Mass., Republican, March 26.]

Edwin H. Fitts, the adulterer arrested at Palmer last Thursday night, was released on the required bonds ($800) last evening, his father, Rev. Harvey Fitts, of Middleboro, Secretary of the Baptist Home Missionary Society, becoming his surety. Fitts was a leading member in the Baptist Church at Palmer, serving as an assistant superintendent of the Sunday school, and usually taking a prominent part in religious meetings. His intimacies with Mrs. Chapin, always noticeable, but never presumed, from the respectability of the parties, to amount to more than innocent indiscretions, were carried on under the cloak of Christianity. They first commenced in a Sunday school excursion to New London, last August, when he informed Mrs. Chapin that he had had a curious dream, in which she acted a prominent part, a remark which he subsequently explained by note, to the effect that his wife whom he loved, was to die, and be succeeded in his affections by herself. Following this was a series of letters, and close upon the letters came the guilty intercourse. It is even said that only a week ago last Sunday, Fitts, then acting as superintendent of the Sabbath school, wrote an amorous note to Mrs. Chapin, who was teaching one of the classes, and passed it to her in a hymn book.

Mrs. Fitts was often puzzled to account for the conduct of her husband and Mrs. Chapin, who were frequently in close conversations at religious meetings; and she was more particularly suspicious of his secret correspondence. She saw him write a letter, one evening, about three weeks since, for the privacy of which he was unusually solicitous; and that night she dreamed out the contents of the note, and that it was addressed to Mrs. Chapin.

An examination of her husband's pockets before he awoke in the morning, sadly confirmed her dream and all the imaginings. The parties then came before their pastor, Mr. Bullock, and promised to amend their ways—no actual guilt at the time being suspected. As the intimacy was seen to continue, however, Fitts was again invited into Mr. B.'s study, and at this visit confessed to the repeated commission of the crime now charged upon him. He even owned up to having taken the lady to Boston on one occasion, she entering the cars at Palmer and he at Warren.

These confessions were immediately made known to Dr. Shaw, the father of the ruined lady, and the family was plunged into the deepest grief. Mrs. C., considering herself lost, fled to Boston, and her father, learning from Fitts the same evening that this was part of the plan of the elopement, had the latter immediately arrested. Thus it was that the facts became public. It is said the matter will now be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law, such being the demand of the public and the purpose of the relatives.

OF THE TWO FREMONTERS OF JOHNSON COUNTY.—We expressed the other day an anxiety to have a personal acquaintance with the two men in Johnson county who voted for Fremont, as against the 1,114 for Buchanan. We have some further information of them from a reliable source. One was a German. Long may he live, and when he dies, as the best men must, the above proof of his love of freedom should be mentioned in his epitaph. The other was a schoolmaster. The day after the election the whole school district met in a body and turned him out, declaring unanimously, that no such dangerous man should teach their children!—Galena Advertiser.

A Lecompton orator, in the New York Legislature, in an excited speech to that body a few days since, held up a copy of the Constitution, and paraphrasing the Immortal Bard, tragically exclaimed:

"Look! in this place ran Greeley's dagger through; [illegible]"
